

The Pope Meant It

This is a very bad sign about Pope Benedict.

As Thomas Friedman and many others have pointed out, criticism of Israel is not the same as antisemitism, but systematically singling out Israel for disproportionate condemnation most certainly is. And that is especially so in regard to Israel's anti-terrorism and security policies, which are a moral beacon and an example to all other nations, in a lowering and cynical world.

The Pope should wake up and see that light.

Thu, 07/28/2005 - 23:05 | digg | del.icio.us | permalink